Happening in February

University Relations - Communications
February 2016

Love is in the air in February and there's much to love at the UA, including exciting performances, lectures, exhibits and more.

A number of fun events are planned to celebrate Shakespeare's First Folio, which will be on exhibit at the Arizona State Museum this month. Among them is a lecture on "Shakespeare's Women" and the Arizona Repertory Theatre's performance of "The Comedy of Errors."

Also this month, you can tour the world without leaving campus by visiting the Peace Corps Fair, where more than 140 returned volunteers will share their stories.

Finally, learn about the UA's expertise on global climate change with the College of Science Lecture Series, "Earth Transformed."

If you want to learn about more UA happenings, be sure to check out the UA Master Calendar.

Lecture Series- 'Earth Transformed' | Feb. 8, 22, 29

The College of Science presents the third, fourth and fifth lectures in its six-part lecture series, "Earth Transformed." The free public lecture series at Centennial Hall focuses on global climate change and its impact. On Feb. 8, professor Russell Monson will present "Ecosystem Resilience: Navigating Our Tenuous Connection to Nature." On Feb. 22, associate professor Kacey Ernst will give a talk on "Climate Change and Human Health: Impacts and Pathways to Resilience." And, finally, on Feb. 29, professor Kimberly Ogden will present a talk on "Carbon Sequestration: Can We Afford It?"

Shakespeare's Women Presentation | Feb. 9

Join Meg Lota Brown, professor of English and director of the UA Graduate Center, as she examines the social and historical contexts of women's roles in Shakespeare's England and how the playwright both generates and subverts assumptions about gender. The lecture will kick off Special Collections' exhibition "Shakespeare's Contemporaries and Elizabethan Culture," which runs Feb. 8 through April 30. Both events coincide with the First Folio exhibit at the Arizona State Museum.

Exhibit ? 'First Folio! The Book that Gave Us Shakespeare' | Feb. 15-March 15

To commemorate the 400th anniversary of Shakespeare's death, the Folger Shakespeare Library is sending one copy of the First Folio to one location in every state. Through a competitive process, the UA was selected to host the First Folio for Arizona. The book includes 36 of Shakespeare's plays – 18 of which had never before been published. View this extraordinary book at the Arizona State Museum. A full list of campus events being offered in conjunction with the exhibit is available here [9].

Peace Corps Fair [10] | Feb. 26

Visit a Pacific island village, an African market or a Latin American bus station without leaving campus. Meet more than 140 returned Peace Corps volunteers to ask questions and enjoy the stories they gathered while living 27 months abroad. Learn how to apply for the Peace Corps or find a local volunteer opportunity at this free, family-friendly fair.

Join the Arizona Repertory Theatre for a madcap adventure of mistaken identity and the chaos that ensues in Shakespeare's "The Comedy of Errors." Combining farce, slapstick humor and romance, the tale takes two sets of twins separated at birth and throws them into a town renowned for sorcery. The result is a comic masterpiece.
