List Your UA Club or Organization on UA@Work

University Communications
March 2018

Did you know there's a UA club dedicated to helping stray animals on campus? How about the one that helps employees improve their public speaking skills? There's even a club that will teach you how to dance, and another that invites you to sing in a choir and not just the shower.

Information about these clubs and many more — 25 in all — is on the UA@Work [1] website's Clubs & Organizations page [2]. There, you’ll find meeting details and contact information.

The UA@Work [1] team recently updated each club and organization listing with current information, but we're always looking for additions. Are you part of a club or organization that should be included on this list? Adding a listing is easy: Click here [2], then click the "Submit Club/Org" button near the upper right. From there, you'll be taken to an online form.

Once the information is submitted, we'll review and post it.
