

Tucson Humanities Festival

Date::

October 3, 2017

With an expanded, monthlong format, the 2017 Tucson Humanities Festival ^[1] will explore the theme of "Resistance & Revolution," presenting lectures on topics ranging from early Christianity to contemporary human rights activism.

The 10 presentations, from Oct. 3 to Nov. 7, will feature faculty from across the University of Arizona's College of Humanities ^[2] as well as special guests, including Nadya Tolokonnikova of the Russian art collective Pussy Riot, poets Martin Espada and Odilia Galván Rodríguez, and Diana Taylor, president of the Modern Language Association.

For more information about the festival, go to humanitiesfestival.arizona.edu ^[1].

<https://uaatwork.arizona.edu/sites/default/files/11x17Poster-ResHalls.pdf>

Source URL: <https://uaatwork.arizona.edu/uannounce/tucson-humanities-festival>

Links

[1] <http://humanitiesfestival.arizona.edu/> [2] <http://humanities.arizona.edu/>