

UA Careers Posting A22270: Director of the Institute for LGBT Studies

Date::

January 26, 2018

The Office for Research, Discovery & Innovation (RDI) invites applications for the next Director of the Institute for LGBT Studies (ILGBTS), one of the premier university-wide research institutes and centers at the University of Arizona (UA). For more information about the Institute's mission and research initiatives, see www.lgbt.arizona.edu [1].

The UA Institute for LGBT Studies is an interdisciplinary research site for cutting-edge inquiry and scholarship where LGBTQ-related pedagogy and scholarship is produced, engaged, and enacted. We bring together scholars from around the world to participate in advancing transnational perspectives on race, sexuality, and gender informed by the critique of globalization. We are committed to the pursuit of critical inquiry and transformational education and to making their benefits accessible to the public through invigorating collaborations, speakers' series, scholarly symposia, performances, lectures, and community engagements.

Quicklink: <http://uacareers.com/postings/23833> [2]

Source URL: <https://uaatwork.arizona.edu/uannounce/ua-careers-posting-a22270-director-institute-lgbt-studies>

Links

[1] <https://www.lgbt.arizona.edu> [2] <http://uacareers.com/postings/23833>